INTRODUCTION

STATEMENT OF PURPOSE

The City of Glendale is currently drafting a Downtown Specific Plan to promote, enhance, and regulate future development in Downtown Glendale. The adoption of this programmatic document meets the definition of a "project" under the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) and requires the preparation of an Environmental Impact Report (EIR). As part of the EIR for the project, Jones & Stokes conducted a historic resources survey of the Downtown Specific Plan area and drafted this historical resources technical report to inform the preparation of the cultural resources section of the EIR, provide a basis for evaluating impacts within the project boundaries, and to otherwise serve as an informational document for the City of Glendale Planning Department, City officials, and the general public.

I. PROJECT DESCRIPTION

The proposed Downtown Specific Plan is a programmatic policy document being prepared by the City of Glendale. Consistent with State of California requirements, the City's General Plan, and other established policy documents, the proposed Specific Plan will include a comprehensive set of incentives, standards, and requirements to guide future development in the City's Downtown area. The plan defines the physical envelope for future growth in Downtown Glendale by using height limits, density, and design standards, and provides direction in germane elements such as economic development, urban design and architecture, density standards, open space and streetscape, use mix, transportation, parking, public art, and cultural resources.

The area covered by the Downtown Specific Plan area consists of approximately 221 acres located in the center of the Glendale, California. The area is generally bounded to the north just above Glenoaks Boulevard, to the west by Central Avenue and Columbus Avenue, to the east along Maryland Avenue, and to the south by Colorado Street (See Figure 1).

Under CEQA, the EIR for the project must consider potential impacts on cultural resources. The purpose of this historical resource technical report is to identify and evaluate all historically significant resources that currently exist within the Downtown Specific Plan Area. This information is then used to evaluate the project's impacts for inclusion in the EIR, and to guide planning for future development by the Glendale Planning Department.

II. METHODOLOGY

A reconnaissance-level historical resource survey of the project area was undertaken in January 2006. The survey was conducted according to established professional standards and practices, as prescribed in National Register Bulletin 24—Guidelines for Local Surveys: A Basis for Preservation Planning and the Secretary of the Interior's Standard and Guidelines for Identification (48 FR 44720-23) and "Recording Historical Resources," prepared by the State Office of Historic Preservation dated March 1995. In National Register Bulletin 24, The National Park Service characterizes a reconnaissance-level survey as "a 'once over lightly' inspection of an area, most useful for characterizing its resources in general and for developing a basis for deciding how to organize and orient more detailed survey efforts."

Using the latest in survey techniques and technology, the survey methodology involved three principle elements: 1) Preparation of a historic context focused on the history and development of Downtown Glendale; 2) Compiling a preliminary list of previously evaluated historical resources in the project area; and 3) Conducting a reconnaissance-level field survey of all properties within the project area. The completed historic context is presented in this technical report in Section III below, and the results of the reconnaissance-level field survey are provided in Section V. Because of the limited research inherent in a reconnaissance-level survey, the present effort distinguishes between "known historical resources" (or resources that have already been formally identified by an authoritative agency) and "potential historical resources." The latter are properties that appear to meet the designation criteria of the National Register, California Register, or Glendale Register, but require an intensive-level survey investigation before a formal evaluation can be made.

The various criteria for identifying historical resources for the purposes of CEQA are set forth in Section 15064.5(a) of the CEQA Guidelines.

A. Research Methods

Jones & Stokes conducted archival research to determine the location of previously documented historic and architectural resources proximate to the project, and to help establish a historic context for use in evaluating the significance of properties in the project area. The history of Downtown Glendale has been well documented by prior studies, including the City's Historic Preservation Element of the General Plan and other reports and surveys. Therefore, historical research was limited primarily to existing secondary sources. Primary sources were researched to supplement this information where necessary and to account for gaps in the documentation.

Many of the properties in the Downtown Specific area are already listed in national, state, and/or local inventories of historic properties, or have been previously surveyed by qualified architectural historians in other projects. Jones & Stokes compiled a list of these prior evaluations using several sources, including survey and project reports provided by the City of Glendale. These sources included:

• National Register of Historic Places

- California Register of Historical Resources
- California State Historical Resources Information System (CHRIS)
- Glendale Register of Historical resources
- "Glendale Architectural and Historical Survey: Final Report" (1983/84) by the Glendale Historical Society
- "Historical resources Survey: Downtown Glendale Project Area" (1991) by Associate Historical resource Specialists
- "Request for Determination of Eligibility for the Edison School/Pacific Park Project" (1996/99) by Myra L. Frank & Associates
- "Final Greater Downtown Strategic Plan Master EIR"
- "City of Glendale: Historic Preservation Element of the General Plan"
- "Historic Preservation Element Amendment: Final EIR" by EIP Associates

Based upon these sources, approximately 107 properties in the Downtown Specific Plan Area have been previously evaluated using criteria for historical listing at the local, state, or national levels. The compiled listing of previously evaluated properties is provided in Appendix A of this report.

B. Field Methods

Jones & Stokes conducted a reconnaissance-level (or windshield) field survey of all properties within the Downtown Specific Plan Area. This effort involved photographing, recording data for, and evaluating a total of 372 properties on 594 parcels.

Using GIS data provided by the City of Glendale, including parcel boundaries and tax assessor information for each property, Jones & Stokes' staff created a parcel-by-parcel GIS baseline for the project area that was then linked to a proprietary survey database. The survey database is designed to directly relate to the City's GIS, and the combined systems were employed in the field to record information about each property. Aerial photograph and parcel boundary overlays, estimated tax assessor construction dates, and location information, such as street address and the Assessor's Parcel Number (APN), aided this effort and helped ensure the accuracy of the data collected.

Site-specific information was collected on a parcel-by-parcel basis for each building or structure within the Downtown Specific Plan Area determined to be 45 years of age or older. Estimated dates of construction were established using the tax assessor data provided by the City and by visual inspection. Where multiple structures exist on a single parcel, each structure associated with that parcel was individually recorded and evaluated. Where a single structure spanned multiple parcels, the structure was recorded and evaluated as a single resource. Secondary structures, such as sheds and garages, were not recorded as separate resources.

Based on information recorded during the reconnaissance-level survey, Jones & Stokes evaluated the historical significance of all resources within the Downtown Specific Plan Area determined to be 45 years of age or older. The evaluations of historical significance were made using the criteria of the National Register of Historic Places, the California Register of Historical Resources, and the Glendale Register of Historical resources, respectively (refer to Section IV for more information on each registry).

Information recorded for each resource determined to be 45 years of age or older included one or more photographs of each property in the project area from the public right of way; the architectural style of each resource, if identifiable; the existence of non-original additions and alterations; and an assessment of the physical integrity of each resource based on existing local, state, and national criteria. Resources less than 45 years of age were recorded only if they were known to have some overriding architectural or historical significance.

Photographs were taken of properties within the Downtown Specific Plan Area determined to be less than 45 years of age that had no known overriding significance. However, no additional information was recorded.

Parking lots, vacant, and unimproved parcels within the project area were also identified. The current use of these properties was documented (i.e., "parking lot" or "no improvements"). No additional information was recorded for these parcels, and no evaluations assigned.

III. HISTORIC CONTEXT

Jones & Stokes prepared the following historic context statement to better understand the history of Glendale's Downtown and to serve as a basis for evaluating the historical significance of resources in the project area. The information in this historic context is intended to supplement the citywide context statement, contained in the existing Historic Preservation Element of the General Plan, dated September 1997. Portions of that statement have been summarized here for continuity with an emphasis placed on the development patterns of the Downtown Specific Plan Area.

The National Park Service guidelines, as specified in National Register Bulletin 16, define a historic context as a body of information about historic properties organized by theme, place, and time. This information is linked with tangible built resources through the concept of a property type, or a grouping of individual properties based on shared physical or associative characteristics. The purpose of a context statement is to provide decision makers and the community with a framework for the identification of historical resources and the determination of their relative significance.

The Downtown Glendale Specific Plan Historic Context Statement is a summary based on the historic context statement in the City of Glendale's Historic Preservation Element (1997). Other sources include the Cumberland Heights Neighborhood Historical resource Survey Report (2004), the Glendale Architectural and Historical Survey 1983 - 1984 Final Report, Gebhard & Winter's An Architectural Guidebook to Los Angeles (2003 edition), Los Angeles A to Z by Leonard and Dale Pitt, Pacific Electric Stations, edited by John Heller, and the Los Angeles Conservancy Modern Committee's Glendale Tour booklet. Supplemental information as relates to the Historical resources Survey has been added.

Overview

The City of Glendale is located at the base of the Verdugo Mountains, due north of downtown Los Angeles. It is 30.6 square miles in size. The townsite was recorded on March 11, 1887, its original boundaries First Street (now Lexington Drive) on the north, Fifth Street (now Harvard Street) on the south, Central Avenue on the west, and the Childs Tract on the east. Glendale is located within the original Spanish land grant boundaries of the Rancho San Rafael and the Rancho La Cañada. Surrounding communities include Montrose, La Cañada Flintridge, Burbank, Pasadena, Eagle Rock, Atwater, and Tujunga. The Los Angeles River flows along its western boundary.

Although the townsite of Glendale faltered at first, by 1910 it could reasonably call itself the "Fastest Growing City in America." Transportation developments, avid boosters, a real estate boom and the ideal suburban relationship to Los Angeles transformed a population of 300 in 1900 to 62,736 by 1930. Glendale incorporated in 1906.

At the turn of the twentieth century, the commercial downtown of Glendale was located on Glendale Avenue at Third Street (now Wilson Avenue). But after the establishment of an interurban line by Leslie C. Brand and Henry Huntington, with tracks running up Brand Boulevard, Brand became the civic and commercial hub of Glendale.

The Gabrielino

The earliest inhabitants of the Glendale area were the Gabrielino, a Native American group of Shoshonean descent, a culturally prestigious community known for their advancements in preindustrial technology, maritime trade, religion and oral literature. After the Spanish established the Mission San Gabriel de Archangel and the Mission San Fernando Rey de Espana in their territory in the late eighteenth century, the Gabrielino were relocated to the missions, where their culture experienced decline. In 1772 a Spanish soldier named Jose Maria Verdugo arrived at the Mission San Gabriel de Archangel, eventually settling down to raise horses and cattle. He was awarded the second land grand in Alta California, the Rancho San Rafael, in 1784.

Spanish Rancho to American Town (1784-1871)

The 36,403-acre Rancho San Rafael, bordering the Los Angeles River and the Arroyo Seco, was granted in 1784 to Jose Maria Verdugo, a Spanish officer who had served with the Portola-Serra Expedition. On the land, Verdugo raised livestock and cultivated crops. The Verdugo Adobe was constructed c. 1826 or c. 1860 (the exact date is unknown) and is located at what is now 2211 Bonita Drive. Upon Verdugo's death in 1831, the land passed to his son, Julio, and daughter, Catalina.

After California became a state in 1850, Spanish and Mexican landowners were required to validate their land claims. Julio and Catalina Verdugo were officially granted title to the rancho by the Board of Land Commissioners in 1855, and in 1861 they split the rancho between southern and northern portions. In 1858 Julio Verdugo acquired part of the Rancho La Cañada. In the years following, various other land transactions and economic misfortunes whittled down the Verdugos' holdings. What became known as the "Great Partition" of 1871, the result of a lawsuit brought by Andrew Glassell, among others, against a debt- ridden Julio Verdugo, saw the land pass into the hands of several Anglo landholders. They included Captain C. E. Thom, Judge Erskine M. Ross, B. F. Patterson, H. J. Crow, and E. T. Byram.

Glendale: Early Beginnings

The completion of the transcontinental railroad in 1876, and a subsequent fare war in 1886 between the Southern Pacific and the Santa Fe, created the Southern California land boom of the 1880s. Real estate speculators Byram, Phelon and Patterson purchased 126 acres of the Childs Tract in 1883. O. W. Childs had been granted 371 acres of the Rancho San Rafael as part of the Great Partition. The tract was located between First Street (Lexington Drive) and Ninth Street (Windsor Road). On March 11, 1887, Thom, Ross, Patterson and Byram commissioned a survey and recorded the town of "Glendale" (a name from the rancho days), bounded by First Street (now Lexington Drive) on the north, Fifth Street (now Harvard Street) on the south, Central Avenue on the west, and the Childs Tract on the east.

To promote the new town, the developers hired prestigious San Francisco architects Samuel and Joseph Cather Newsom to construct the Glendale Hotel in 1886-1887. With its elaborate porch, gables, turrets and chimneys, the hotel exemplified the fashionable Queen Anne style. It was located on the block bounded by present day Jackson Street, Wilson Avenue, Isabel Street and Broadway. However, the Glendale Hotel was never occupied, as its fortunes, along with Glendale's, were affected by the collapse of the land boom. The hotel was briefly used as a girls' school, then the Glendale Sanitarium, before being demolished in 1928.

Only two other buildings survive from Glendale's earliest days, the Goode House (c. 1895) at 119 N. Cedar Street, and the Doctors' House (c. 1888-1889), which was moved from its original location at 921 East Wilson Avenue to Brand Park in 1980, and now operates as a house museum.

Tropico

At the southern end of present day Glendale, the township of Tropico was platted in 1887 by real estate speculators C. B. Erskine, John Erskine, Hezekiah Jarvis, and Albion Chandler. The town was named after a Southern Pacific depot located nearby. Tropico was situated in the area of Los Feliz Road (originally Tropico Avenue) and Central Avenue. The community transitioned from ranch land and strawberry farms to a small town inhabited by commuters to Los Angeles. One ranch house remains from the Tropico era, the small, wood-frame Richardson House, named for a pioneer landowner and developer, now located at 1281 Mariposa Street.

An important early business in Tropico was the Tropico Art Tile Works, formed in 1904, which eventually was absorbed by Gladding McBean. W. C. B. Richardson donated property at the corner of San Fernando Road and Cypress Street to the company, hoping to lure potential homeowners. The building still remains in its original location. An Improvement Association was formed in 1900 to promote Tropico, later joining forces with the Glendale Improvement Association to promote the interurban line. Tropico was annexed by Glendale in 1918.

Transportation and the "Father of Glendale"

While the City of Glendale could boast a population of merely 300 circa 1900, it experienced impressive growth after 1900 for several reasons, one being the annexation of Tropico in 1918. However, the most significant impact on Glendale's development was the establishment of the interurban railroad line between Glendale and Los Angeles in 1904. The interurban system was spearheaded by Leslie C. Brand, also known as the "Father of Glendale." Brand moved to Los Angeles in 1898 and amassed a fortune as co-founder of Title Guarantee and Trust Company. He became Glendale's largest landowner, and in 1902 established the Glendale Railway Company, which was ultimately absorbed into the Pacific Electric Railway Company. Railway tracks ran up Brand Boulevard by 1904, with the Glendale Depot located at Brand Boulevard and Broadway.

Brand was aided in his efforts to promote Glendale by Edgar A. Goode, the founder of the Glendale Improvement Association, and an important civic booster.

A Community of Homes

An important factor in Glendale's growth was its identity as a bedroom community, a "community of homes." Its earliest architectural heritage belonged to its Spanish past, as exemplified by the early adobes, followed by farmhouses and Victorian styles during the Anglo immigration of 1871-1900. The Taylor House, built circa 1871, is a modest wood frame residence, the earliest remaining home from the era. During the 1920s it was moved to its current location at 1027 Glenwood Road.

Although Glendale's population was a mere 300 at the turn of the twentieth century, single-family residences were constructed around that time in the American Foursquare style, and with population growth, Craftsman bungalows were constructed from 1908 until after World War I. During the 1920s Southern California experienced a real estate boom, and former agricultural lands and estates were subdivided. Large tracts were platted, and neighborhoods of bungalows were built in the Spanish Colonial Revival, Colonial Revival, or Craftsman/Colonial Revival styles. Upscale residential neighborhoods, such as Cumberland Heights, were located in northern Glendale near Leslie C. Brand's estate, El Miradero, where large single-family residences were designed in the era's popular period revival styles.

Residential building downtown during the 1920s included multiple-family residential dwellings close to the commercial and civic core. Popular styles included two- to four-story period revival apartment buildings and bungalow courts.

Brand Boulevard and the Growth of Downtown

The establishment of the Pacific Electric line running up Brand Boulevard shifted Glendale's business district from its original turn-of-the-century location at the corner of Glendale Avenue and Third Street (Wilson Avenue). Attention turned west to Brand Boulevard, which soon boomed with new commercial development. Older, one-story wood frame buildings were replaced with two-story, masonry commercial buildings. The city's first four-story business block was constructed in 1922 at Brand Boulevard and Wilson Avenue. The first six-story building on Brand Boulevard was constructed for Security Trust and Savings Bank (originally Leslie C. Brand's First National Bank of Glendale) in 1923 by leading Glendale architect Alfred F. Priest, at 100 N. Brand Boulevard. Other important downtown buildings included the Glendale Theater (1920), also designed by Priest. Priest was responsible for nearly fifty buildings in Glendale, including residential, commercial, institutional and governmental buildings.

Another important Glendale architect working in the 1920s was Albert G. Lindley, who designed the Hotel Glendale (1924-25) with Charles R. Selkirk, the Masonic Temple (1927-28), and the Egyptian-themed, Art Deco Alex Theater (1923-24). A member of the Methodist Church, Lindley designed numerous churches for Methodists and other denominations.

In 1928 the Seventh Day Adventist Church purchased the Glendale Sanitarium, formerly the Glendale Hotel, from Leslie C. Brand. The surrounding land was subdivided, and the Sanitarium Alex Theater, 216 N. Brand Boulevard, January 2006.

ultimately became the Glendale Adventist Medical Center.

During the 1920s Glendale became an important aviation center. Early in 1912, Leslie C. Brand built the first private airplane hangar at Mountain Street and Grandview Avenue. Glendale's Grand Central Airport was likewise established in the early 1920s, along with the Zig Zag Moderne/Spanish Colonial Revival style Grand Central Air Terminal in 1928, which was the first official air terminal for the Los Angeles area. For the first time, air service was offered between Los Angeles and New York. As years passed, the Grand Central Airport's runway was deemed insufficient for modern planes. The airport closed in 1959, although the terminal still remains in its original location.

Important civic buildings were constructed in the 1930s, such as the Glendale Post Office, erected in 1933-1934, at 313 E. Broadway. In 1940-1942 Glendale City Hall was constructed by the Works Progress Administration in the Moderne style, designed by architect Albert E. Hansen.

Postwar Glendale and Modern Resources

Most development was complete in Glendale by 1945. But Glendale, along with the rest of Southern California, experienced significant growth after World War II. Important Modern postwar buildings built downtown include the County Courthouse, at 600 E. Broadway, designed by Arthur Wolfe. The County Courthouse combines the values of Modern architecture (clean lines, wide use of glass, horizontal breadth) with classical elements such as the red brick façade.

Renowned modern architects Welton Becket and Associates designed the Glendale Public Library, located at 300 E. Harvard, in 1973. Constructed of roughtextured concrete, the library's clear span roof used waffle slabs to absorb noise.

Even Glendale's churches reinvented themselves in the Modern style. In 1960 First United Methodist Church of Glendale built a new Modern church at 134 N. Kenwood. Architects Walter Moody and Ralph Flewelling were both members of the Methodist community.

The church features steel slip cables and extensive glasswork. As its focal point is the Trilon, a 112-foot-high three-legged tower, now known to the Glendale community as a prominent feature of the downtown skyline.

IV. REGULATORY ENVIRONMENT

A. Thresholds of Significance

According to CEQA (Public Resources Code [PRC], Section 21084.1), historical resources include any resource listed in, or determined to be eligible for listing, in the California Register of Historical Resources, established in 1992. According to PRC §5024.1, a resource may be listed in the California Register if it:

- Meets National Register of Historic Places criteria A through D;
- Has been determined eligible for, or listed in, the National Register of Historic Places;
- Is a State Historical Landmark designated after No. 770 and potentially if it was designated before No. 770;
- Is a State Point of Historical Interest; or
- Has been determined significant by the State Historical resources Commission, including individual resources, contributors to historic districts, significant resources identified in qualifying historical resource surveys, locally designated historical resources, districts, or landmarks (i.e., listing on the Glendale Register of Historical resources); or has been designated under any municipal or county ordinance (i.e., in an historic preservation overlay zone).

In addition, according to the §15064.5(a)(3) of the CEQA Guidelines, historical resources may include: "Any object, building, structure, site, area, place, record, or manuscript which a lead agency determines to be historically significant or significant in the architectural, engineering, scientific, economic, agricultural, educational, social, political, military, or cultural annals of California may be considered to be an historical resource, provided the lead agency's determination is supported by substantial evidence in light of the whole record.

Generally, a resource shall be considered by the lead agency to be "historically significant" if the resource is eligible for listing on the National Register of Historic Places, meets the criteria for listing on the California Register of Historical Resources (Pub. Res. Code §5024.1, Title 14 CCR, Section 4852), or is eligible for designation as a local landmark.

B. National Register of Historic Places

First authorized by the Historic Sites Act of 1935, the National Register of Historic Places was established by the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966 as "an authoritative guide to be used by Federal, state and local governments, private groups and citizens to identify the Nation's cultural resources and to indicate what properties should be considered for protection from destruction or impairment." The National Register recognizes properties that are significant at the national, state and local levels. According to the National Register, the quality of significance in American history, architecture, archaeology, engineering, and culture is present in districts, sites, buildings, structures, and objects that possess integrity of location, design, setting, materials, workmanship, feeling, and association, and:

- A. That are associated with events that have made a significant contribution to the broad patterns of our history; or
- B. That are associated with the lives of persons significant in our past; or
- C. That embody the distinctive characteristics of a type, period, or method of construction, or that represent the work of a master, or that possess high artistic values, or that represent a significant and distinguishable entity whose components may lack individual distinction; or
- D. That have yielded, or may be likely to yield, information important in prehistory or history.

Ordinarily cemeteries, birthplaces, or graves of historical figures, properties owned by religious institutions or used for religious purposes, structures that have been moved from their original locations, reconstructed historic buildings, properties primarily commemorative in nature, and properties that have achieved significance within the past 50 years are not considered eligible for the National Register, unless they satisfy certain conditions.

The evaluation of integrity according to the National Register is grounded in an understanding of a property's physical features and how these features relate to its historic significance. It is through the retention of original character-defining features that the significance of a resource is conveyed. The National Register recognizes seven aspects or qualities that, in various combinations, define the integrity of a property. They include:

- 1. Location Location is the place where the historic property was constructed or the place where the historic event occurred.
- 2. Design Design is the combination of elements that create the form, plan, space, structure, and style of a property.
- 3. Setting Setting is the physical environment of a historic property.
- 4. Materials Materials are the physical elements that were combined or deposited during a particular period of time and in a particular pattern or configuration to form a historic property.
- 5. Workmanship Workmanship is the physical evidence of the crafts of a particular culture or people during any given period in history or prehistory.
- 6. Feeling Feeling is a property's expression of the aesthetic or historic sense of a particular period of time.
- 7. Association Association is the direct link between an important historic event or person and a historic property.

C. California Register of Historical Resources

The California Register of Historical Resources (California Register) was established to be a comprehensive listing of California's historical resources, including those of national, state and local significance. The California Register was established in 1992 by the State Legislature with the passage of Assembly Bill (AB) 2881. The criteria for listing in the California Register are consistent with those developed for the National Register, but have been modified for State use. The types of resources that may be eligible for listing include buildings, sites, structures, objects, and historic districts. Resources must be significant at the local, state, or national level under one or more of the following criteria:

- 1. It is associated with events that have made a significant contribution to the broad patterns of local or regional history, or the cultural heritage of California or the United States;
- 2. It is associated with the lives of persons important to local, California, or national history;
- 3. It embodies the distinctive characteristics of a type, period, region, or method of construction, or represents the work of a master or possesses high artistic values; or
- 4. It has yielded, or has the potential to yield, information important tot he prehistory or history of the local area, California, or the nation.

Resources eligible for listing in the California Register must retain enough of their historic character or appearance to be recognizable as historical resources and to convey the reasons for their significance. It is possible that resources lacking sufficient integrity for listing in the National Register may still be eligible for the California Register. Buildings, structures, or objects that have been moved or reconstructed, and resources that have achieved significance within the past 50 years may also be considered for listing in the California Register under specific circumstances.

D. Glendale Municipal Code

The Glendale Register of Historical resources, as established by Glendale Municipal Code Title 15.20, is the City of Glendale's official list of designated historical resources. The City recognizes a "historical resource" as meaning any "site, building, structure, area or place, manmade or natural, which is historically or archaeologically significant in the cultural, architectural, archaeological, engineering, scientific, economic, agricultural, educational, social, political or military heritage of the city of Glendale, the state of California, or the United States and which has been designated as historically significant in the National Register of Historic Places, the state of California Register of Historical Resources, the Glendale register of historical resources, or the historic preservation element of the Glendale general plan." To be eligible for listing on the Glendale Register, a historical resource must contain one or more of the following elements:

- A. The proposed resource identifies interest or value as part of the heritage of the city;
- B. The proposed resource is the location of a significant historic event;
- C. The proposed resource identifies with a person or persons or groups who significantly contributed to the history and development of the city, or whose work has influenced the heritage of the city, the state or the United States;

- D. The proposed resource exemplifies one (1) of the best remaining architectural type in a neighborhood; or contains outstanding or exemplary elements of attention to architectural design, detail, materials or craftsmanship of a particular historic period;
- E. The proposed resource is in a unique location or contains a singular physical characteristic representing an established and familiar visual feature of a neighborhood;
- F. The proposed resource is a source, site or repository of archeological interest; and/or
- G. The proposed resource contains a natural setting that strongly contributes to the well being of the people of the city.

The designation of local historic districts in the City of Glendale is subject to the requirements of Glendale Municipal Code Title 30.25. Under these codes, a "historic district" (or a historic district overlay zone) is defined as a "a geographically definable area possessing a concentration, linkage or continuity, constituting more than sixty (60) percent of the total, of historic or scenic properties, or thematically-related grouping of properties. Properties must contribute to each other and be unified aesthetically by plan or historical physical development." A historic district overlay zone may be eligible for designation by the City of Glendale if it contains one or more of the following elements:

- A. Exemplifies or reflects special elements of the city's cultural, social, economic, political, aesthetic, engineering, architectural, or natural history;
- B. Is identified with persons or events significant in local, state, or national history;
- C. Embodies distinctive characteristics of a style, type, period, or method of construction, or is a valuable example of the use of indigenous materials or craftsmanship;
- D. Represents the work of notable builders, designers, or architects;
- E. Has a unique location or is a view or vista representing an established and familiar visual feature of a neighborhood community or of the city;
- F. Embodies a collection of elements of architectural design, detail, materials or craftsmanship that represent a significant structural or architectural achievement or innovation;
- G. Reflects significant geographical patterns, including those associated with different eras of settlement and growth, transportation modes, or distinctive examples of park or community planning;
- H. Conveys a sense of historic and architectural cohesiveness through its design, setting, materials, workmanship or association; or
- I. Has been designated a historic district in the National Register of Historic Places or the California Register of Historical Resources. (Ord. 5347 § 18 (part), 2003)

The City of Glendale has not adopted formal guidelines for evaluating the integrity of individual historical resources or historic districts. Because of the diversity of types and characteristics of the city's historical resources, the integrity of resources within the Downtown Specific Plan Area were evaluated for local eligibility using the integrity guidelines established by the National Register of Historic Places and the California Register of Historical Resources, and taking into consideration the area's period of significance and historic context.

V. SURVEY FINDINGS

There are approximately 76 properties in the Downtown Specific Plan Area (out of a total of 372 properties on 594 parcels) that contain historical resources listed in, formerly determined eligible for listing, or potentially eligible for listing, pending a formal evaluation, the National Register of Historic Places, the California Register of Historical Resources, or as local landmarks or landmark districts under the provisions of the Glendale Municipal Code. According to PRC Section 21084.1, which defines eligibility for listing on the California Register of Historical Resources, these properties may be considered "significant historical resources" for the purposes of CEQA.

The reconnaissance-level survey results distinguish between "known historical resources" and "potential historical resources." "Known historical resources" include those properties previously listed in or formally determined eligible for listing in the National Register or the California Register, or that have been formally designated as local landmarks or contributors to a local historic district. "Potential historical resources" are those properties identified during the reconnaissance-level survey as being eligible for listing in the National Register, on the California Register, or for designation as local landmarks or contributors to a local historic district, but which have not been formally evaluated as part of an intensive-level survey effort.

The determination for each identified historical resource was documented on a DPR523a Primary Record form, including a photograph and brief statement on the property's historical significance. A summarized list of these determinations is provided in Appendix C. The completed DPR523a forms are likewise provided in Appendix D.

Of the 76 historical resources identified in the project area, 30 had been previously evaluated by other projects and/or historical resource surveys. These resources were reevaluated as part of the present undertaking, and their evaluations updated to reflect their current condition and relative significance. A total of 9 of these properties are considered to be "known historical resources" because they have already been listed on the National Register of Historic Places, the California Register of Historical Resources, or the Glendale Register of Historical Resources. A prior evaluation also exists for the historic "Streetlights" on East Broadway in Glendale. As a group, these streetlights were formally evaluated as eligible for local listing or designation. Many historic streetlights remain extant on several downtown streets, but were not fully inventoried as part of the historic resources survey.

A total of 66 properties in the Downtown Specific Plan Area are considered to be "potential historical resources" based on the results of the reconnaissance-level survey, because they appear to meet the eligibility criteria for listing in the National Register of Historic Places, the California Register of Historical Resources, or for designation as local landmarks. In addition, 5 of these resources appear eligible for listing on the California Register as contributing properties to a potential historic district. The properties at 540, 607, 610, and 633 N. Central Avenue, comprise a group of four similarly designed medical office buildings, constructed between 1953 and 1963. Based on the reconnaissance-level survey results, they have been identified as potential historical resources because they are an unique grouping of postwar medical office buildings that embody distinctive characteristics of their architectural type and period of construction in Glendale.

The historic resources survey identified 160 properties in the Glendale Downtown Specific Plan Area that do not appear to be historically significant and are not eligible for listing in the National Register, California Register, or as a locally designated landmark or local historic district, based on the reconnaissance-level survey results. Of these properties, 144 were evaluated as ineligible for listing in the National Register, the California Register, or for local designation, due to loss of physical integrity, lack of a cohesive neighborhood, or because they otherwise did not meet applicable criteria to be considered historically significant. Of these, 16 properties were found to be ineligible for listing, but may warrant special consideration in local planning processes. These properties retain good physical integrity or are representative examples of a particular building type, but lack the characteristics and relative significance to be considered individually eligible local landmarks or contributors in a local landmark district.

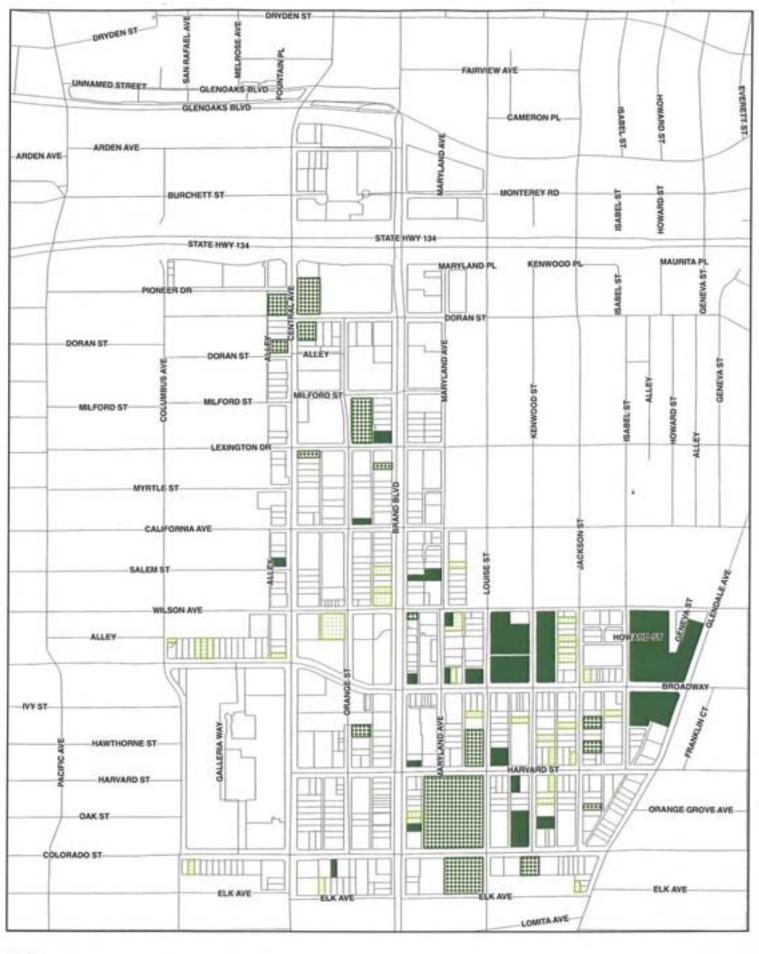

135 properties in the Glendale Downtown Specific Plan Area are less than 45 years old. These properties do not yet meet the National Register's age criteria and are not known to have some overriding architectural or historical significance that would qualify them for listing. Because certain properties may achieve historical significance with the passage of time, we recommend that these properties be reevaluated when they reach 50 years of age.

Of the 594 parcels in the Glendale Downtown Specific Plan area, 151 are vacant and possess no identified historic resources. Of these vacant parcels, 77 contain parking lots. 71 of the vacant parcels have no visible improvements. The remaining 3 contain public courtyards or open space.

The complete results of the reconnaissance-level historic resources survey are summarized in Table 1 below and are provided in detail in Appendix C.

VI. PROJECT IMPACTS

The purpose of this section is to analyze whether the proposed project would result in a "substantial adverse change" to an "historical resource." Under CEQA, the potential impacts of a project on historical resources must be considered. The purpose of CEQA is to evaluate whether a proposed project may have an adverse effect on the environment and, if so, if that effect can be reduced or eliminated by pursuing an alternative course of action or through mitigation measures.

In accordance with California Public Resource Code §21084.1, the proposed project would have a significant effect on the environment if development associated with any of the development scenarios would cause a substantial adverse change in the significance of a historical resource as defined in Section 15064.5(b) of the CEQA Guidelines.

In determining potential impacts, a "substantial adverse change" means "demolition, destruction, relocation, or alteration of the resource such that the significance of an historical resource would be materially impaired." (California Public Resources Code 5020.1(q).) The setting of a resource should also be taken into account in that it too may contribute to the significance of the resource, as impairment of the setting could affect the significance of a resource. Material impairment occurs when a project:

- 1. Demolishes or materially alters in an adverse manner those physical characteristics of an historical resource that convey its historical significance and that justify its inclusion in, or eligibility for, inclusion in the California Register of Historical Resources; or
- 2. Demolishes or materially alters in an adverse manner those physical characteristics that account for its inclusion in a local register of historical resources pursuant to Section 5020.1(k) of the Public Resources Code or its identification in an historical resources survey meeting the requirements of Section 5024.1(g) of the Public Resources Code, unless the public agency reviewing the effects of the project establishes by a preponderance of evidence that the resource is not historically or culturally significant; or
- 3. Demolishes or materially alters in an adverse manner those physical characteristics of a historical resource that convey its historical significance and that justify its eligibility for inclusion in the California Register of Historical Resources as determined by a lead agency for purposes of CEQA.(18 State CEQA Guidelines, 15064.5(b)(2).)

CEQA regulations further identify the Secretary of the Interior's Standards for the Treatment of Historic Properties with Guidelines for Preserving, Rehabilitating, Restoring, and Reconstructing Historic Buildings or the Secretary of the Interior's Standards for Rehabilitation and Guidelines for Rehabilitating Historic Buildings (1995), Weeks and Grimmer, as the measure to be used in determinations of whether or not a project of new development or rehabilitation adversely impacts an "historical resource." Section 15064.5(b)(3) states:

Generally, a project that follows the Secretary of the Interior's Standards for the Treatment of Historic Properties with Guidelines for Preserving, Rehabilitating, Restoring, and Reconstructing Historic Buildings or the Secretary of the Interior's Standards for Rehabilitation and Guidelines for Rehabilitating Historic Buildings (1995), Weeks and Grimmer, shall be considered as mitigated to a level of less than a significant impact on the historical resource.

Moreover, projects which strictly adhere to the Secretary of the Interior's Standards may be determined categorically exempt in that they have been determined not to have a significant effect on the environment, thus, exempting it from the provisions of CEQA. (State CEQA Guidelines 15300 and 15331.) However, the categorical exemption is not permitted when a project "may cause a substantial change in the significance of a historical resource." (State CEQA Guidelines 15300.2(f).)

The Secretary of the Interior's Standards are as follows:

- 1. A property will be used as it was historically or be given a new use that requires minimal change to its distinctive materials, features, spaces, and spatial relationships.
- 2. The historic character of a property will be retained and preserved. The removal of distinctive materials or alteration of features, spaces, and spatial relationships that characterize a property will be avoided.
- 3. Each property will be recognized as a physical record of its time, place and use. Changes that create a false sense of historical development, such as adding conjectural features or elements from other historic properties, will not be undertaken.
- 4. Changes to a property that have acquired historic significance in their own right will be retained and preserved.
- 5. Distinctive materials, features, finishes, and construction techniques or examples of craftsmanship that characterize a property will be preserved.
- 6. Deteriorated historic features will be repaired rather than replaced. Where the severity of deterioration requires replacement of a distinctive feature, the new feature will match the old in design, color, texture, and, where possible, materials. Replacement of missing features will be substantiated by documentary and physical evidence.
- 7. Chemical or physical treatments, if appropriate, will be undertaken using the gentlest means possible. Treatments that cause damage to historic materials will not be used.
- 8. Archeological resources will be protected and preserved in place. If such resources must be disturbed, mitigation measures will be undertaken.
- 9. New additions, exterior alterations, or related new construction will not destroy historic materials, features, and spatial relationships that characterize the property. The new work shall be differentiated from the old and will be compatible with the historic materials, features, size, scale and proportion, and massing to protect the integrity of the property and its environment.
- 10. New additions and adjacent or related new construction will be undertaken in such a manner that, if removed in the future, the essential form and integrity of the historic property and its environment would be unimpaired.

In determining the impact of a project on an "historical resource," CEQA regulations rely upon the application of the Secretary of the Interior's Standards to determine whether the project demolishes or alters the resource, in particular those physical characteristics of the historical resource that convey its historical significance.

A. Discussion of Impacts

Because the Glendale Downtown Specific Plan EIR is intended to be a programmatic document that defines issues and sets forth development policy in broad terms rather than on a project or site specific basis it reserves site specific analysis for subsequent tiers of the EIR process. Development assumptions at this stage are in terms of scenarios for minimum, moderate and maximum levels of potential development, as measured in new land use floor area and housing units added.

Typical project impacts that may "disrupt or adversely affect...a property of historic or cultural significance" or cause a "substantial adverse change in the significance of an historical resource" may include:

- Demolition or substantial alteration without consideration of historic features;
- Incompatible massing, size, scale or architectural style of new development on adjacent properties;
- Obstruction or extensive shading of significant views to and from the property by new development;
- Incompatible use of an existing structure;
- Disruption of integrity of setting; and
- Long term loss of access to the property

The level of significance for an effect is dependent upon the existing integrity and nature of contributing elements to its historic or cultural significance, and the sensitivity of the current or historic use of the resource.

Preferred Alternative. Under the Preferred Alternative development scenario, a net change from existing conditions up to 1,738,962 square feet of office space, -87,833 square feet of retail space (not including Town Center), and 3,981 housing units could occur. The likelihood that any of the new development would affect historical resources is dependent upon the proximity of the proposed development to any of the identified historical resources. Any future development project that is located on or in the proximity of any of the identified historical resources located within the project area would have the potential to result in a significant impact to historical resources. Any future development project within the project area that would cause a substantial adverse change in the significance of an historical resource would represent a significant impact related to historical resources.

Alternative A. This alternative would allow a net change from existing conditions up to 1,701,462 square feet of office space, -87,833 square feet of retail space (not including Town Center), and 3,915 housing units. Since development under Alternative A could occur on or near parcels within the project area that presently contain identified historical resources, impacts under the Alternative A would be potentially significant. Any future development project within the project area that would cause a substantial adverse change in the significance of an historical resource would represent a significant impact on historical resources.

Alternative B. This alternative would allow a net change from existing conditions up to 1,701,462 square feet of office space, -87,833 square feet of retail space (not including Town Center), and 3,435 housing units. Because development under Alternative B could occur on or near parcels within the Project Area that presently contain identified historical resources and could thus result in a substantial adverse change in the significance of an historical resource, impacts under Alternative B would be potentially significant, although the likelihood would be less than Alternative A because the total allowable development would be less. Any future development project within the project area that would cause a substantial adverse change in the significance of an historical resource would represent a significant impact on historical resources.

Cumulative Impacts

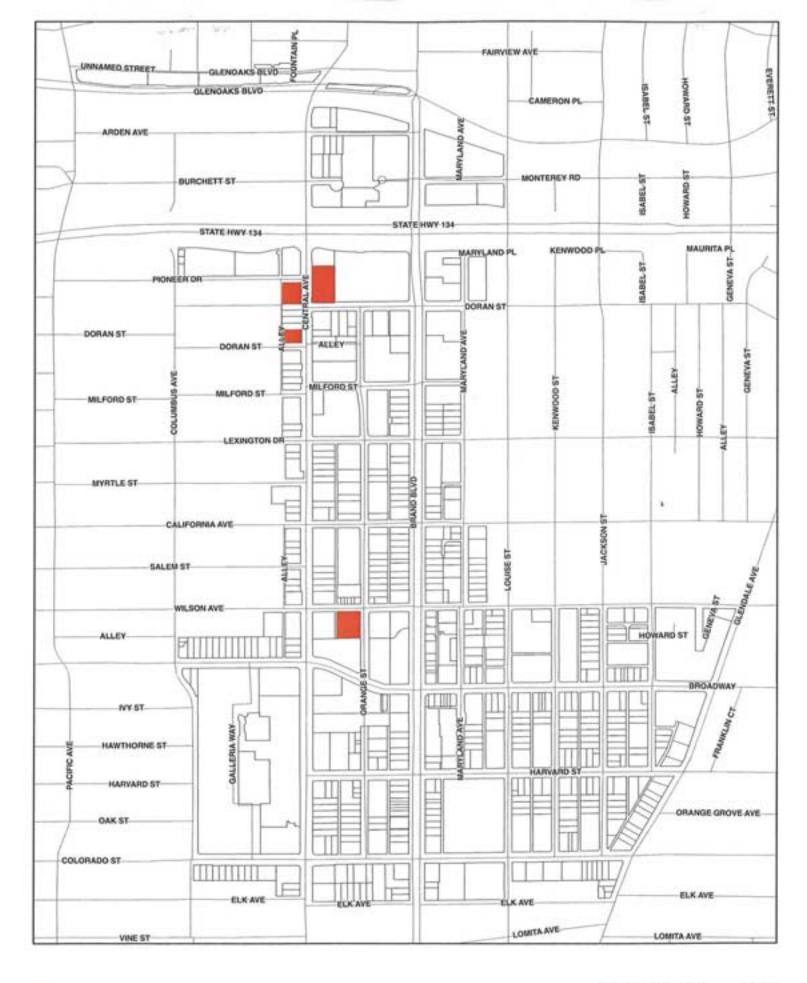

Cumulative impacts related to cultural resources could occur to the extent that multiple future development projects within the project area were to result in significant impacts to multiple identified historical resources. The following table contains a list of historical resources in the Downtown Specific Plan area that may be demolished or materially altered in an adverse manner by approved or pending development projects.

Historical Resources that May Have Significant Cumulative Impacts
Related to Approved or Pending Projects

Resource Address:	APN:
607 N. Central Avenue	5637002051
610 N. Central Avenue	5343002050
633 N. Central Avenue	5637002046
200 W. Wilson Avenue	5642002045

The cumulative impacts to historical resources caused by approved or pending projects on these historical resources would be significant and unavoidable.

Mitigation measures set forth below would address potential impacts to cultural resources that would reduce impacts to cultural resource to less than significant levels and thus no significant cumulative impacts related to cultural resources would occur.

B. Mitigation Measures

The following mitigation measures are recommended for all future development projects within the project area that are located on or in proximity to properties containing known historic resources or potential historic resources:

- To the extent feasible, the preservation, rehabilitation, restoration, reconstruction or adaptive reuse of known historic resources shall meet the U.S. Secretary of the Interior's Standards for Rehabilitation. Any proposal to preserve, rehabilitate, restore, reconstruct, or adaptively reuse a known historic resource in accordance with the Interior Secretary's Standards shall be deemed to not be a significant impact under CEQA and, in such cases, no additional mitigation measures will be required.
- 2. Historic street lamps, if any, should be repaired and reused, and not replaced by contemporary fixtures, when maintenance or streetscape improvements occur, unless reuse or repair is demonstrated to be infeasible.
- 3. In the event that a future development project within the Downtown Specific Plan Area is proposed on or immediately surrounding a site containing a known historic resource, environmental review of the development project shall consider the impacts to the known historic resource and, if needed, shall include a study conducted by a qualified historian or architectural historian to determine whether the proposed development project would materially alter in an adverse manner those physical characteristics of the known historic resource that conveys its historical significance. If the project would demolish a historic resource or if it is determined that the development project would materially alter in an adverse manner those physical characteristics that convey the resource's historic significance, the City shall impose any and all measures to avoid or substantially lessen the impact, unless the City, after having analyzed the significant impacts and proposed mitigation measures in an Environmental Impact Report, finds such mitigation measures are infeasible and adopts a statement of overriding considerations. Potential modifications to a site-specific development project to avoid or mitigate adverse impacts on historic resources include, but are not limited to:
 - Site plan modifications that incorporate the historic resource into the proposed project, and if necessary, rehabilitation of the historic resource. Rehabilitation of architecturally or historically significant buildings shall meet the U.S. Secretary of the Interior's Standards for Rehabilitation;
 - Design changes related to height density, upper story step-backs, architectural features, or materials; and
 - Changes in the proposed development program to include compatible uses.
- 4. In the event that a future development project within the Downtown Specific Plan Area is proposed on a site containing a potential historic property, the City shall require, as part of the environmental review of the project, an intensive level survey to determine whether the property is a historic resource under CEQA. If the intensive level survey determines that the potential historic property is a historic resource, the City shall undertake the analysis and impose mitigation measures required under MM-4-14-3.
