“A Tree Grows in Brooklyn” is a 1943 novel written by Betty Smith about a young girl growing up in Brooklyn. We don’t remember it. Chances are you don’t either. But it was a big hit in its day.

What we do remember is we have trees growing in Deukmejian Park. You can help them when you join us for our Wilderness Workday by watering and removing invasive plants from the park. And it’s a lot closer than Brooklyn.

We have tasks for all ages and abilities. This is a great event for families, individuals, church groups, clubs, and students needing Community Service hours.
