A Message From Yasmin Beers

Glendale City Manager

Anyone remember the Looney Tunes episode where Bugs Bunny and Daffy Duck argue about what season it is? "Duck season, wabbit season, duck season, wabbit, season!" Well, it's neither. It's actually budget season!

So what does budget season even mean?

In Glendale, we use a multifaceted process for the development, approval, and implementation of our budget. The budget covers a fiscal year - a twelve-month period from July 1 to June 30. The process involves every department and seeks input from the public. If I had to choose one document out of all the plans and reports that are written each

Two More Budget Study Sessions Before Budget Hearing and Adoption

The Glendale City Council will hold its second public budget study session Tuesday, May 7 at 9 a.m. at Glendale City Hall. The second session will feature budget presentations from each of the City's departments, a presentation about the City's capital improvement program, and fee changes.

A third public session is scheduled for Tuesday, May 14 at 9 a.m. at the same location. The third and final budget study session will feature a discussion about the allocation of Measure S funds. A budget public hearing is scheduled for Tuesday, May 21 at 6 p.m. Should no further study sessions be necessary, the adoption of the fiscal year 2019-20 budget is scheduled for Tuesday, June 4 at the Council's evening public meeting, which begins at 6 p.m. at City Hall.

The public is invited to attend all of these meetings to provide their input on the City's budget. Those who cannot attend in-person are encouraged to listen or watch the sessions and hearing at GlendaleCA.gov/watch. For more information about the City's budget, visit GlendaleCA.gov/finance then click on budget in the navigation.

year, I would say that the budget is what defines Glendale and what serves as the most important guiding policy document. Simply put, it determines the services we provide, how much each service gets, and how it is paid for. These services are used and depended upon on a daily basis - it is the shower we turn on to get ready for work, the streets or public transportation we use to get to work, and the parks we play in.

Months in advance, the Finance Department in coordination with my office and all department directors created a recommended budget. This all-encompassing recommendation is then submitted to the City Council. After receiving the recommendation in April, the City Council reviews and discusses the content in budget study sessions and holds a budget hearing to provide an opportunity for input.

Your City Council goes through this process with great care. When reviewing and while deliberating, they clearly discuss the objectives, quantify the results, explore alternatives, evaluate the methodology, and make adjustments as necessary. Tough decisions are made at the dais. The steps that we take to prepare and discuss the budget will provide Council the best possible information to arrive at the best decision.

Without a budget, we would go without many of our basic needs, such as trash pickup, well-maintained roads, and access to information through our libraries. We encourage you to attend the sessions and provide your feedback. Happy Budgeting!

The Public Works Department completed the Downtown Glendale Internally Illuminated Street (IISNS) Name Sign Replacement Phase 2 Project at 32 signalized intersections in the Downtown Glendale area in October 2018. 250 new signs were installed.

Phase 1 was completed in August 2017. That project replaced 150 IISNS in the core downtown business district. Phase 3 will start in June 2019 with the installation of approximately 139 new IISNS and will cover the remaining downtown area, as well as a nearby area between Glendale Avenue and the easterly city border, south of Lexington Drive and north of Palmer Avenue; and finally, the intersections of Verdugo Road at Mountain Street and Civic Auditorium, and the intersections of Glenoaks Boulevard at Jackson Street and Geneva Street.

May 14 – Teen Mental Health

The IISNS Replacement project was necessary since the existing signs were installed in the early 1990s and were notably faded from sun damage due to deterioration of the protective coating. The new light-emitting diode (LED) signs require less maintenance and are more energy efficient. The previous signs used obsolete fluorescent bulbs for illumination.

The new IISNS signs adhere to California Manual on Uniform Traffic Control Devices recommendation to provide illuminated street name signs with increased font sizes from 6 and 8 inches to 9 and 12 inches for better visibility. The benefits of the new signage includes improved sign visibility, reduction of maintenance costs, and increased safety for drivers and pedestrians.

Law professor and celebrated television personality Stan Goldman appears at the Downtown Central Library in Glendale to discuss his new book "Left To the Mercy Of A Rude Stream." His author talk will be held in the auditorium on Monday, May 13 at 7 p.m.

In his book, Goldman outlines a piece of the history of the Holocaust (grim reminders of inhumanity appear on virtually every page), tells his mother's remarkable story, ruminates about the perpetrators of the atrocities, and condemns those who profited by the success of the Third Reich war machine and the labor of Jewish slaves.

Although Goldman focuses primarily on his mother, he occasionally employs a wide-angle lens to show us what was going on throughout war-torn Europe; he even deals some with the stories of Anne Frank, Raoul Wallenberg, and other Holocaust icons. His mother's story is astonishing; her survival, virtually impossible.

As the war was winding down, she was working in the concentration camp and would almost certainly have died there if not for one mans negotiation with Heinrich Himmler, who, seeing the end of the war (and realizing what would happen to him), made a deal to release some Jewish women, Goldman's mother among them. Building Safety Month in May

The City of Glendale Building and Safety Division and International Code Council (ICC) have partnered to offer student scholarships in support of Building Safety Month. There will be a total of two secondary or higher education scholarships to rising or graduating high school seniors and current first, second or third year students of a two or four year institution. Interested applicants are invited to submit a 1000-word or less essay that illustrates how building codes in a community contribute to the confidence within the community. Each scholarship is for $300. The scholarship application is available here.

The ICC is dedicated to developing model codes and standards used in the design, build, and compliance process to construct safe, sustainable, affordable, and resilient structures. For close to 40 years, each May ICC has promoted an awareness campaign called Building Safety Month. The campaign aims to help advance innovations in the building industry, to continue the adoption of safe building techniques worldwide, and to inform the public about what makes their homes and buildings safe for use. To help individuals, families, and businesses understand what it takes to create safe and sustainable structures, Building Safety Month highlights the ways communities and its citizens can stay safe in the buildings that they live, school, work, and play in. It brings attention to the important work of the code official whose job it is to ensure that all buildings are constructed safely and how building departments are a resource for everyone; from the professional contractor to the weekend DIYer.

This May, the Building Safety Month theme is 'No Code. No Confidence'. As we face disasters from wildfires, floods and earthquakes, it's time to reflect on the importance of building codes, building trades and safe construction. Applicants for the scholarship must answer the following writing prompt in 1000 words or less:

"With this year's theme of "No code. No Confidence," discuss the presence of regulated building codes within your community and its corresponding effect on the level of confidence in your community."
